Can we stop calling him a journalist? I went to college with this kid (Claremont McKenna College) and he was crazy back then (maybe even more so). More importantly, he has no journalistic training. There were no journalism courses offered at Claremont McKenna or really at any of the schools in the Claremont Consortium (definitely no journalism major).

In College he would harass people through his blog—he seemed to enjoy outing gay people (this was around 2008/Prop 8 and the editor of the campus paper was not out to his parents or something? The exact details were always a bit unclear). He also supposedly would grab pictures and screenshots off of people's facebook's to blackmail/harass/attack them later in life (like if they wanted to run for office or whatever). He also tried to have a professor fired for "supporting terrorists" (the Professor, who was Palestinian, had supported some boycott of Israel...).

Going to school with him was kind of terrifying—our Government Department had a lot of old Reagan Officials and probably some lingering Nixon cronies who completely enabled his school-yard fascism (that's how he is so plugged into the Conservative scholarship world). There is no doubt in my mind that at a different time and place he would have gladly been over-seeing Stalinist Show Trials and gleefully ordering executions...I have more stories but his M.O. is harassment and frivolous lawsuits so I am censoring myself a bit on this public comment page

He was a notorious instigator and had no friends. The college was waiting for him to graduate and leave so they wouldn't have to deal with his ludicrous exposés. He was known to have an Asian fetish because he wanted a submissive woman. hilariously, he graduated being best known for pooping on the (I think I'm remembering the floor right) 7th floor of Stark (a dorm). I'm sad this idiot is getting any attention at all, but I hope this guy becomes famous for the same reasons he was in college, his public pooping problems.

Jesus, that's fucked. I went to high school with Chuck (I think he was just Charles then) and because of a mutual friend spent plenty of time exposed to him. I'm certainly one of the people who "weren't particularly kind" to him. But isn't that what petulant self absorbed people say when you disagree with them?

We went to a high school that had the same liberal slant I believe reality has. Most of the students were intelligent, driven, and outspoken. Someone who would spout conservative bullshit like Chuck was very quick to be shot down. And if someone was insisting on doing it time and time again, people's (especially teenagers) reactions got less and less sympathetic. It's hard to calmly explain to someone over and over how claiming that things aren't racist isn't the same as them not being racist.

A lot of the students at my high school were (obscenely) rich, whatever the opposite of neuroatypical, and with both parents actively involved in their education and life. But in a school of 500 kids, I can think of maybe 4 during my 4 years there who would have disliked someone for not having those qualities. I can think of way more who would dislike someone they saw to be mean-spirited and argumentative for argumentativeness sake.

There was also the impression, amongst those who were exposed to him often, that he didn't believe anything he was saying. Being a contrarian was easily the most interesting thing about him (other than that godawful ginger hair — kidding) and it seemed he learned that early on. So when he describes those people "trading on their relationships" with him just to see their names in the press as pathetic, it is a mix of mind blowing and a bit sad. Sad if he wasn't such an obvious douchenozzle.

The Daily Caller Can't Quit Chuck Johnson

J.K. Trotter

Filed to: JOURNALISMISM 12/09/14 4:20pm

You may be aware that Charles C. Johnson of GotNews.com had a role in several notorious (and false) stories published by Tucker Carlson's Daily Caller. Yes, this includes the infamous debunked article—to which Johnson “contributed reporting”—about New Jersey Senator Bob Menendez supposedly soliciting prostitutes in the Dominican Republic.

Ads by Google

Run Windows on Mac

Windows + Mac = Easy & Powerful. Mac Features in Windows. Try Free!
parallels.com/Windows-on-Mac

But today the conservative news site is trying to distance itself from its most famous former contributor. Why? Because the Washington Post decided to highlight Johnson's tenure at the online rag.

Caller Columnist Matt K. Lewis begins by castigating the Post for documenting Johnson's depravity:

If you want more bloggers threatening to expose the identities of an alleged rape victims, then you can thank the Washington Post for helping expedite that. Today's profile of Charles Johnson is enough to fuel Johnson's narcissism for years to come—and to embolden the delusional dreams of dozens more aspiring conservative Hunter S. Thompsons.

Later on, Lewis emphasizes that Johnson merely served as a freelance reporter, not a full-time Daily Caller employee:

In the future, I would ask the Post, and others, to be a bit more specific when it comes to associating Charles Johnson with this outlet. He has written some freelance articles for the Daily Caller—just as he has written for many other outlets over the years. Having actually worked here for nearly four years—I'm sitting in my DC office right now—I think I might have met Johnson maybe twice.

Why does it matter if Lewis has personally met Chuck Johnson only a few times? It doesn't. At the same time, Lewis downplays the scope of Johnson's work. He didn't write "some" articles—he wrote over 100 stories for Lewis' employer.

The Daily Caller gave Johnson one of the largest platforms in conservative media, in part because Johnson wouldn't hesitate to publish absolutely anything. The same pattern holds today. So it's long past due for the website to acknowledge, and understand, its role in creating Charles C. Johnson. The world will be a slightly better place.

Wait, Did Clowntroll Blogger Chuck Johnson Shit On The Floor One Time?

Greg Howard

Filed to: POOPERS 12/09/14 4:00pm

If you've been online this week, you may have heard of Charles "Chuck" C. Johnson, an odious conservative blogger who has gained some fame by rolling around in the shit left in the wake of last month's Rolling Stone piece, which told the story of a University of Virginia student who claimed she was raped by seven men at a frat party her freshman year in school. Since then, Rolling Stone has revealed that they really, really fucked up, and elements of the story are inaccurate.

Charles Johnson

2:14 PM (0 minutes ago)

to me

Oh, and the comments about me shitting on the floor were made up.

Word?

Sure enough, on the Facebook post, there are cryptic comments from friends and former classmates about some mysterious floor-shitting incident.

I'd be inclined to believe the guy, or at least give him the benefit of the doubt. But he's been caught lying many times before, and in the wake of Rolling Stone deputy editor Sean Woods tendering his resignation, it's more important than ever to fact check. And so I ask you, dearest readers: Did Chuck Johnson really shit on the floor in college? Please send context, stories, and photos to tips@deadspin.com. If you have physical evidence, you'd be better served just throwing that shit, as it were, on Amazon. As Johnson can attest, he's somebody.

I have heart-breaking news, team, there was never any proof that he actually was the one who pooped on the floor. Someone did poop on the floor and just to sort of troll the Mountain King himself people started posting that he pooped. It was one of those things no one could prove or disprove. It started as a joke but has sort of morphed into apocryphal origin story. And there is a sort of poetic justice in tarring the biggest shit on campus with that fecal crime...but alas it's not really true.

The Asian fetish thing, though, is spot on.

I was his year. And there were lots of petty grievances that wouldn't really make sense outside the context of our school. Weird personal tiffs with associate Deans and things. Our school had a weird 'personality' (if you want to personify a school like that) and was fairly conservative as far as liberal arts colleges. The school is really big on right-wing economics (and most of the economics and government department professors have a lot of close ties to conservative groups). So Charles was really big on preserving the conservative ethos at the school.

Just one illustrative example: when CMC hired a new President (after we graduated, incidentally) he made a big deal about how the guy had donated to Obama's Presidential campaign. Stupid shit like that. His big thing is just that what he does now for semi-public figures, he would do in college to people on campus.
He harasses people basically.

That being said, I cannot believe Charles C. Johnson is against illegal immigrants. After all, without illegal immigrants, who would have cleaned up the mess that fateful night, high up in Stark Hall, when Charles Johnson removed his pressed khakis, slowly squatted down, flexed his sphincter, and pooped on the 7th floor of Stark Hall?

Can we stop calling him a journalist? I went to college with this kid (Claremont McKenna College) and he was crazy back then (maybe even more so). More importantly, he has no journalistic training. There were no journalism courses offered at Claremont McKenna or really at any of the schools in the Claremont Consortium (definitely no journalism major).

In College he would harass people through his blog—he seemed to enjoy outing gay people (this was around 2008/Prop 8 and the editor of the campus paper was not out to his parents or something? The exact details were always a bit unclear). He also supposedly would grab pictures and screenshots off of people's facebook's to blackmail/harass/attack them later in life (like if they wanted to run for office or whatever). He also tried to have a professor fired for "supporting terrorists" (the Professor, who was Palestinian, had supported some boycott of Israel...).

Going to school with him was kind of terrifying—our Government Department had a lot of old Reagan Officials and probably some lingering Nixon cronies who completely enabled his school-yard fascism (that's how he is so plugged into the Conservative scholarship world). There is no doubt in my mind that at a different time and place he would have gladly been over-seeing Stalinist Show Trials and gleefully ordering executions...I have more stories but his M.O. is harassment and frivolous lawsuits so I am censoring myself a bit on this public comment page

I agree with all of this! CJ had a horrible reputation at CMC. In regard to the issue with the editor, from what I remember Charles was angry that his (presumably homophobic) comment was deleted from the message board for an article on gay marriage. In retaliation, he publicly outed on his blog both the editor (who wasn't out to his family) and the writer (who wasn't out at all), and demanded that the editor publicly apologize to him...or he would call his parents. Eventually he took down the language outing both individuals, but I heard the school had to get involved.

Why am I not at all surprised. Remember, of course, that Chuck has also complained bitterly about being doxxed himself when the phone number he himself continually tweeted to reporters was noted by other people on twitter.

Eh. I've had a pretty good career in mainstream journalism and don't have formal "journalistic training," other than one class at a community college. Just worked on the college paper and then worked my way up from small newspapers in the 90s.

Anyone who is breaking news - whether it be on their blog or a big newspaper - can call themselves a journalist. This isn't an elitist profession. Whether or not he's a good or ethical one, however, is another story.

Fuck, I totally forgot about the witch hunt he started against that prof. He was really the worst kind of person and his hatred of everybody ran deep. He always pretended it was because he was poor or different but really it was because he was a creep. I can also concur the lack of journalism courses at the 5Cs. I am so glad to see fellow cmcers speaking the truth about this asshole.

Counterpoint: Johnson was the one that published the second two rumors by sharing Gawker's emails. The first one has been floating around for a week or so. By putting everything out there, including the research they did, they're not putting rumors into the public sphere, but they are explaining what can and cannot be deemed true.

That's why they're safe from a libel suit, even as they show him what it's like to be the subject of his own sleazy attacks. But it's really superfluous given that he's so obviously toxic that even the Daily Caller has disavowed him.

I wouldn't necessarily wish him a life of destitution. But if you're wondering we're covering him, it's not just because his depravity is uncommon; it's because he was raised, tutored, and credentialed by the mainstream political right.

Your suspicions about the comment archives are correct. Some highlights about the poop and other things:

• Tiger Motherf#@king Woods

Why are we worried about a few extra kegs when Charles Johnson is pooping on the 7th floor of Stark?

I think it's about time we got our priorities straight. Shit stinks worse than beer.

Thank you.

FINALLY someone with some valuable insight into this situation.

(via Thursday Parties Suspended)

Rather than descend into the back-and-forth of the comment section where I will almost assuredly be told I sh-t on the floor, am a homosexual, etc., etc., let's turn to the text of the DREAM Act. When we do, we see that the DREAM Act will allow those illegals "who entered the U.S. before age 16 and who have lived here illegally for five consecutive years."

Tiger Motherf#@king Woods

Charles, Charles, Charles. Congratulations. Even though your argument is full of holes, it's STILL the best argument on here against this act.

That being said, I cannot believe Charles C. Johnson is against illegal immigrants. After all, without illegal immigrants, who would have cleaned up the mess that fateful night, high up in Stark Hall, when Charles Johnson removed his pressed khakis, slowly squatted down, flexed his sphincter, and pooped on the 7th floor of Stark Hall?

(via Making the DREAM Act a Reality)

• Charles C. Johnson

I retract my previous comment. For those who are unaware of my failed presidential campaign of the previous semester... well now you are aware. I would like to recruit campaign managers to assist me in impeaching the current "leader". Please send all applications to my cmc email. Apply quick because these spots are sure to be spilled soon.

I didn't write this, obviously, but impeachment may not actually be a bad idea, seeing how low the bar for competence has been set. It's not even October yet and a speaker has been stolen, the parking scheme has gone totally awry, and TNCs were canceled because ASCMC tried to play a fast one on DOS.

Tiger Mother@Sking Woods

If the idea impeachment comes up, Charles C. Johnson will have one vote, while the three turds he left on the 7th floor of Stark will one as well.

Next up: students caught lying about their weight.

But seriously, this is messed up that they waited to make this announcement after students had applied to CMC.
Fraudulent much?

If the college cared so much about its SAT scores, it would discontinue its affirmative action and legacy programs.

I think you made my year by writing an entire article based on my comment. I'd give anything to have some proof, but I wasn't there when it occurred. However, his history of racism, sexism, homophobia, and outright assholiness is easily available on his undergrad "news" blog the cmc independent and he commented on the cmc forum under a verified account. he was a creep who friended me on Facebook before I even started at cmc by finding girls on the "class of 2013 acceptance group" Facebook page. I never saw him with anybody on campus because he had no friends and everyone hated him with a passion. I am so glad when someone googles his name this will appear. I hope him pooping in stark follows him forever, just goes to show you how important it is to use a bathroom (and not be an asshole your entire life).

Long time reader who has never commented, but I absolutely had to when I saw this article. I went to undergrad with this fool at Claremont McKenna College. He was just as despised there as he is now. He was a notorious instigator and had no friends. The college was waiting for him to graduate and leave so they wouldn't have to deal with his ludicrous exposés. He was known to have an Asian fetish because he wanted a submissive woman. hilariously, he graduated being best known for pooping on the (I think I'm remembering the floor right) 7th floor of Stark (a dorm). I'm sad this idiot is getting any attention at all, but I hope this guy becomes famous for the same reasons he was in college, his public pooping problems.

I started two years after him, so I wasn't there since he did it as a freshman or sophomore. But the upperclassman talked about it regularly and it was an undisputed fact that he did it. Multiple people talked about it in great detail on the school's paper/website the cmcforum.com and I bet many instances of people talking about it can be seen in the comment archives from 2008-2011. I wish I could provide more info or proof, but gawker wouldn't have to look hard if they found someone from the same graduating class as him. The school is tiny, only 300 per class, so everyone knew each other.

Can we stop calling him a journalist? I went to college with this kid (Claremont McKenna College) and he was crazy back then (maybe even more so). More importantly, he has no journalistic training. There were no journalism courses offered at Claremont McKenna or really at any of the schools in the Claremont Consortium (definitely no journalism major).

In College he would harass people through his blog—he seemed to enjoy outing gay people (this was around 2008/Prop 8 and the editor of the campus paper was not out to his parents or something? The exact details were always a bit unclear). He also supposedly would grab pictures and screenshots off of people's facebook's to blackmail/harass/attack them later in life (like if they wanted to run for office or whatever). He also tried to have a professor fired for "supporting terrorists" (the Professor, who was Palestinian, had supported some boycott of Israel...).

Going to school with him was kind of terrifying—our Government Department had a lot of old Reagan Officials and probably some lingering Nixon cronies who completely enabled his school-yard fascism (that's how he is so plugged into the Conservative scholarship world). There is no doubt in my mind that at a different time and place he would have gladly been over-seeing Stalinist Show Trials and gleefully ordering executions...I have more stories but his M.O. is harassment and frivolous lawsuits so I am censoring myself a bit on this public comment page

I have heart-breaking news, team, there was never any proof that he actually was the one who pooped on the floor. Someone did poop on the floor and just to sort of troll the Mountain King himself people started posting that he pooped. It was one of those things no one could prove or disprove. It started as a joke but has sort of morphed into apocryphal origin story. And there is a sort of poetic justice in tarring the biggest shit on campus with that fecal crime...but alas it's not really true.

The Asian fetish thing, though, is spot on.
